TOPNOTCHER THRILLS AT NEARBY COURSE

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Special Agent, sensation of the present spring meeting at my Tanforan track, is not to be seen in action in the stakes scheduled for tomorrow, as the championship to be decided is exclusively for three year olds. Special Agent, a brown son of Sir Gallahad III, is a four year old and I must say a real runner. Not only did he score in the Inaugural Handicap at six furlongs, but he came right back on the second Saturday of the session to win the San Francisco Handicap at one mile and a sixteenth.

The two straight victories of the trim four year old demonstrates at least one thing: to-wit, as the lawyers say, the importance of the roles of the trainer and the rider. Major Austin Taylor, mining magnate of Vancouver, purchased the well bred colt from the Brookmeade Stable at Santa Anita, where the "Agent" had not set the world on fire by his running.

One explanation of the improved performances of the popular galloper is along the line that as Bob Smith, trainer of the Brookmeade horses, had his heart set on the return of Cavalcade to the races he did not give his usual amount of attention to others in the string or at least did not realize their potentialities. When turned over to Derrill Cannon, the Taylor conditioner, it was another story. Cannon had no crippled Cavalcade and set about to make a high class performer out of Special Agent.

The greatest of trainers fail to see the possibilities of some of their stock, so it is no reflection on Bob Smith to note that Cannon has made much progress with the discard. Then Cannon has a clever boy to work with him, George Burns, who does the piloting of the colt. Burns is of a higher type, mentally, than many jockeys and that is a big help.

There is already talk that Special Agent possesses sufficient class to put up a battle with Top Row, naturally with the Baroni stallion conceding quite a bit of poundage.

MENTAL HYGIENE CHAIRMAN TO BE SPEAKER OF DAY

Seventeenth District Will Hear Health Program At Meeting Today

Seventeenth District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, with Mrs. R. D. Richards presiding, will meet Friday, March 20, (today) in the auditorium of Burlingame High School, at 10:30 a. m. immediately following the executive board session which convenes at 10 o'clock. Mrs. C. A. Andrews, seventh vice president and director of the department of health, will direct morning and afternoon programs.

The district has been fortunate in securing Miss Lillian Hill, state chairman mental hygiene, as speaker of the day. Miss Hill is a speaker of note, very much in demand, and brings exceptional messages to her audience. Mother singers and community singing are to be featured under the direction of Mrs. Frederick C. Lee, music chairman, Mrs. C. M. Bandtel, associate, as part of the morning program. During the afternoon session, Hubert Dunn, will direct the orchestra of San Mateo High School in selections. Chief Cato of the state traffic patrol has promised to give a safety talk and San San Mateo firemen are to demonstrate first aid. Miss Helen P. Chesebrough, representing the Red Cross, will present first aid certificates to members of several classes who have passed required examination.

Publicity chairmen of the district are requested to bring in their procedure books for a check up.

Luncheon is to be served in box lunch manner in the cafeteria of Burlingame High School.

HEARD ON THE RADIO WEDNESDAY EVENING

(Contributed by Collaboration)

A dictator, on the radio—
Wanted all the world to know
That he, the "big shot" of his town,
Was ready to receive his crown.

Citizens were all a-flitter—
Birdies all ready to twitter;
Lots of home folks listening in,
Expecting to hear a great big din.

No one knew what it would be,
So the "boys" turned out to see;
Would it be praise or just mud?
Alas! It proved to be a "dud."

To run or not to run—that's the "burning" question. Wonder how it feels to be between two "fires."

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE FEED

Merry Time Is Enjoyed By Members Of Community Welfare Association

Irish turkey was the piece de resistance at a get-together dinner held by the Community Welfare Association of this city, Monday evening of this week.

In the neighborhood of seventy-five persons, representative men and women of Daly City, were seated at the banquet tables spread in the hall in the Daly City Theater Building.

To say the food was good and the impromptu talks excellent is hardly a justifiable description of the enjoyable affair — because there was much more to it than merely that.

Such a spirit of comradery, harmony and good fellowship is seldom witnessed at any gathering of this nature. "Pep" talks were the order.

Every speaker had a message of uplift and helpfulness to the residents of this community and a pledge to strive for the welfare of every citizen and to make our city a better place to live and rear children.

Harmony and justice to all was the keynote permeating the entire program.

May other citizens emulate this example and may we have many such helpful affairs in the future.

DO NOT EXPECT TOO MUCH WHEN LISTENING IN!

Early this week there were distributed dodgers announcing that the ranking official of Daly City would broadcast over the radio on Wednesday evening at 7:15 sharp.

The propaganda stated he had a "message for you," no doubt meaning all of our citizens.

Possibly a score or more "listened in," expecting to hear something of great moment for our community's welfare. Imagine the surprise of the hearers when the matter turned out to be little more than a "mutual admiration" affair.

We learned, however, that the occasion was for the purpose of announcing the twenty-fifth anniversary of the incorporation of Daly City, and the "wonderful progress" which had been made under the guidance of our very efficient city government. Maybe it is now time to emulate the foreign monarchies and proclaim:

"All hail the King; the King is dead!"

PRESS OF SAN MATEO COUNTY TO BE HONORED

Expects Presidents And Publicity Chairmen Of All Units To Be Present

In honor of the press of San Mateo County, Seventeenth District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, will entertain at luncheon Tuesday, March 24, 12:45 noon, at Jackson's Tea Room, Burlingame.

All reservations must be in the hands of Mrs. B. D. Ralston, reciprocity chairman, Route 1, Box 311, Redwood City, by March 21. All members making reservations are responsible for same. Members and friends are invited. Reservations are already pouring in and committee members are completing arrangements.

The affair is planned to be a happy, glad-to-see-you occasion, and is customarily held during the peak of district activities. All units will probably send their presidents and publicity chairmen. This year a roll call is to be held of all 43 publicity chairmen in Seventeenth.

Miss Pansy Jewett Abbott, county superintendent of schools, and Beulah C. Schindler, club editor of the San Mateo Times, are to be the speakers. Mrs. W. T. Van Voris is to have charge of special music to be presented. Mrs. R. D. Richards, president, is to deliver the "Welcome."

Wonderful Actress At Her Best In Rendition Of "Sylvia Scarlett"

Stepping triumphantly into the realm of high adventure and romance, Katharine Hepburn scores what is perhaps the most complete triumph of her meteoric career in "Sylvia Scarlett," at the Daly City Theater, Sunday and Monday, March 22 and 23.

Miss Hepburn puts her genius to the test of a characterization which requires her to masquerade through the greater portion of the picture as a boy. She gives a superb and rigidly honest impersonation, which makes the contrast the greater when she assumes her true identity as a girl. Her performance may well be accounted one of the finest ever contributed to screen or stage.

Splendid support is accorded the star by Brian Aherne, Cary Grant, Edmund Gwenn, Princess Natalie Paley and Dennie Moore. Grant's work in a colorful character role is especially worthy of note, in view of the fact that he has in the past worked in conventional romantic leads. Gwenn does an impressive scalawag role.

Action permeates this colorful drama in which George Cukor has directed a kaleidoscope of incidents.

The second attraction is "Another Face," with Wallace Ford and Phyllis Brooks.

Also Popeye in "A Clean Shaven Man."

Bank nights, Tuesday and Saturday.

The Book of Books admonishes: "Conduct thyself not unseemly; be not puffed up." Evidently the Bible is little understood by some of our "great men."

$10,000,000 FOR NEW HOMES

L. M. Giannini, president of Bank of America (left) accepts from Clifford C. Anglim, director of the Federal Housing Administration for Northern California, a government commitment insuring the 2000th home loan made by that bank under the insured single mortgage system. The loans approximate $10,000,000 and Bank of America is declared first bank in the United States to reach that figure under the single mortgage phase of the National Housing Act.

SHRINERS DERBY DAY PROGRAM HELD AT TANFORAN TOMORROW

Thrilling Event In Blaze Of Color To Feature Affair At Home Course

Instead of treading the hot sands as is their custom at times California Shriners are expected to be in a greatly accelerated gait as they move en masse over paved highways to the Tanforan track tomorrow, Saturday, March 21, for the Annual Shrine Day and Derby under the auspices of Islam Temple of San Francisco. Shrine Day will be one of the outstanding events of the season. It will be a blaze of color and scintillating events built around a racy card of eight contests featured by the Shrine Derby and the $2500 added Tanforan three-year-old Championship.

Tanforan never boasted such an abundance of competent three year olds. A majority of the good ones are pointing toward the mile gallop, with indications of as many as 18 or 20 nominations.

John W. Marchbank, directing owner of Tanforan, has arranged a special program for the Shrine fans, with one of the best feature races of the Spring meeting scheduled as the main attraction. With the Shriners will come their guests, and Tanforan is preparing for the greatest day in its history.

Proceeds of Shrine Derby Day will go to Islam Temple to be used in entertaining Shriners passing through San Francisco to the Seattle national Shrine convention in July.

Beginning at 12:30 noon the famed uniformed units of Islam will strut their stuff, and band selections, Patrol maneuvers and other features will be staged with dynamic action.

HIGHER PRICE FOR SILVER WOULD BE BOON TO WORKERS

Concerted Action Should Be Taken To Reduce Ranks Of Unemployed

More than 11,000,000 unemployed in this country right now are wondering what to do next. President Roosevelt and Congress have done much for agriculture and mining, the basic industries, and are going to do more. In all humility a specific move is suggested by the Daly City Record to relieve quite a block of the workless.

It is legal for the federal government to buy silver at a maximum price of $1.29 an ounce. It is imperative in order to increase the capacity of mines now operating and to bring idle mines into operation to increase the present price of silver—if not to $1.29, at least to a figure approaching that level.

This move will be of benefit to many thousands not only directly employed in the mines, but in manufactures related to mining. Early action is asked of the governing powers in this vital matter.

RALLY OF YOUNG DEMOCRATS HERE

Hirschey, chairman of the county central committee. Mrs. Nina Lesseman, Joseph A. Gaffey, Jack Kelly, Robert O'Connell, A. V. Swift, Evans H. Fletcher, Mrs. Anna Karstensen, Mrs. Mary Daly, Olin F. Nuckolls and others were introduced. Judge Hugh F. Mullins Jr., first president of the local unit, and Alfonse Zirpoli, state president, were also presented.

Supervisor Witt was given a rousing cheer upon his introduction.

CAVAGNARO FILES FOR CITY COUNCIL

Edmund T. Cavagnaro, 16 Goethe street, filed nomination papers for one of the two vacancies on the City Council, to be filled at the Municipal election April 14, 1936.

America's future lies in its youth!
HIKING • CAMPING • ADVENTURE • HEALTH • SERVICE • COMRADESHIP
BOY SCOUTS of AMERICA
"Builds Citizenship"

TO OUR YOUNGER AMERICAN CITIZENS

Our early days! How often back
We turn on life's bewildering track,
To where, o'er hill and valley, plays
The sunlight of our early days!

So sings that minstel, W. D. Gallagher; but should some miraculous change occur, whereby you and I were suddenly transported back to boyhood, with all a boy's enthusiasm and activity, we would find that we would be faced by an entire lack of most of the privileges and beneficences of the days when we were boys.

Dr. Smith, that noted speaker of Los Angeles, made no mistake in entitling one of his famous addresses "There Is No More West."

Except for those boys who dwelt in the heart of the great cities up to twenty-five and thirty years ago, any American boy could do most if not all, of the things so graphically described by Mark Twain.

Most of us did make more or less earnest attempts at these achievements and enjoyed hugely our uncomfortable bed on the "cold, cold ground;" or stoically disregarded our incipient feelings of indigestion which resulted from our youthful attempts at "camp cooking."

The average boy of today, with all the elemental desires of his age, has not at hand the opportunity to take out in action the urge for adventure, which privilege was ours in previous generations. The old West has vanished, pushed aside by modern progress and the growth of cities.

This creates a problem of serious import for adults of today to solve. We must provide for the boys and girls of our present generation a satisfactory substitute for the "old swimmin' hole," the tree-climbing and egg-hunting trips of bygone days and for the thousand and one activities the natural location for which has been removed from the reach of our present younger genertaion.

Among the organizations which are engaged in helping the parents and grownups banish these barriers to a balanced development is the Boy Scouts of America, dealing with boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years.

Definite programs for boy life and character development are being carried out by this national organization, which provides for the boys of today that which his own companions, with their native surroundings (now missing), gave the boys of the past.

"There is no more West," but on March 31 the adult population of Daly City are urged to attend the meeting to be held here at which Vaughn McCaughey, noted California educator and Scout Leader, will present some of the avenues of escape which you can provide for the safety of our boys of Daly City.

ESSAYS JUDGED ON AMERICANISM

Daly City Unit No. 410, American Legion Auxiliary, met, Wednesday evening of this week at Legion Hall.

The Americanism essays on "What Constitutes Good American Citizenship," which were written by the students of the upper grades of the elementary schools, have been judged. The winners are Genevieve Price and Edna DeHoff, both attending the Jefferson School. The prizes will be awarded soon. The winning essays will be entered in the District contest.

The birthday party of the Post and Unit was very successful and was enjoyed by all present.

The members will meet this evening, Friday, March 20, at the home of Mrs. Kuse, 178 Park View, to sew for our coming "Country Fair."

The "Country Fair" will be held on April 25 in Legion Hall, and will be an all-day affair. There will be several booths with various articles and foods for sale. Music will be rendered during the evening. All who visit this fair are promised an enjoyable time.

Exceeding competent officials don't usually find it necessary to squander $56 of the taxpayers' money by an error of judgment in attempting to pass the same ordinance twice. However that may be part of the economy program. Maybe better luck next time.

Plans are under way for a monster whist party to be held in South San Francisco in May.

The meeting adjourned in memory of our departed Mary Dudderar.

San Bruno Unit was hostess and served delicious refreshments.

On Friday evening, March 13, the drill team met at the home of Mrs. Marie Dilley in South San Francisco for a business session. The team will continue to drill every week and will make several public appearances in the coming months. Several affairs are being planned to raise money for new uniforms.

Rash Broke Out But Cuticura Soothed

Read this letter—how smarting rash and blisters due to external causes were relieved in almost no time by Cuticura.

"I noticed an itching sensation on my face and arms. It afterwards formed blisters that left the skin very tender and sensitive. Finally a rash broke out which, when rubbed, caused a smarting and intense itching. It was agony.

"A sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment relieved me so much that I bought some. After using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one-half tin of Cuticura Ointment, the rash disappeared." (Signed) Mrs. Grace Bailey, 390 East 201st St., Bronx, New York City.

Garth put his fingers to his lips for silence, and held a fuse-wrapped stick of dynamite close to his match. The miner let go of his rifle and straightened upon his feet, his hands high above his head.

The match flickered out. Garth dropped the dynamite and darted forward. He was none too quick. The slight thud of the fallen rifle had wakened Huxby. As Garth paused behind the corner of the leanto, the engineer peered out, with his pistol thrust forward.

As Garth jumped he struck with the butt of his belt-ax. It cracked down on Huxby's wrist. The engineer's pistol dropped. With a curse, Huxby grasped at the weapon, but Garth was quicker. As he caught it up, Huxby clutched at his throat. Garth felled him with a tap of the ax butt on the temple.

Wakened by the sudden flurry, the two miners in the leanto were grasping at the pair of rifles on which Huxby had lain. Garth whirled the pistol to cover them.

"Hands up, and get out beside your mate," he ordered. "We want only the murderer. But we'll shoot you down like dogs if you interfere."

One of the pair jerked up his hands. The other man hesitated. The miner outside called warningly: "The jig's up, Laney. The other feller has got the drop on us too."

Laney lifted his hands and stared out after his bed-mate. Huxby was staggering up, still dazed from the blow that had felled him. Wild with desperate rage, he struck out furiously. Garth side-stepped and thrust in a tripping foot.

The engineer pitched face-down on the hard-crusted snow. Before he could spring up again, Garth jumped upon his back. The blow knocked him breathless. It was then as easy matter to click Constable Dillon's handcuffs on the wrists of the murderer.

"Stop that cursing, or I'll gag you," Garth said. "There's a lady present. All right, Miss Ramill. Join us."

Huxby fell silent, to gape like the miners at the skin-clad form that came forward out of the black shadows into the firelight. The girl still carried the constable's pistol raised ready to shoot. Huxby saw enough of her face in its border of wolverine fur to make certain Garth had not been bantering him.

"Lilith! You?"

"Yes, it's me, you cowardly sneak killer! I came after you with Alan, and he has let me catch you."

The murderer twisted around with his back to her and the fire. His head sagged forward. With a sudden return of alertness, Lilith turned her gaze away from his shadowed profile to watch the three lined-up miners.

Garth did not smile at the girl's needless caution. She had earned the right to think herself an invaluable helper. He allowed her to stand guard while he gathered up the three rifles and unloaded them.

"Right-o, Miss Ramill," Garth said. "Sit down. It's all over now but the talking."

She lowered the pistol but drew back where she could watch Huxby as well as the miners. Garth looked soberly at the men.

"If you know Kipling, you'll bear in mind that the female of the species is more deadly than the male. I dare say, though, you can safely venture to lower your hands and sit down with us."

At the welcome permission, the three dropped their arms. Two of them at once squatted on a log. Laney lingered for a surly question, before following suit:

"What's the play?"

"All we came for was to arrest Huxby. Help with the cabin plane, and there will be no mention of any shooting other than his murder of the constable. What wages did he promise you?"

"Double the usual. Tole us he had to get in his assessment work before the freeze-up."

"The claim belongs to me," Garth replied. "I will pay you the double wages."

"Ugh," growled Laney. "You outplayed the d—n fourflusher. It's a deal. You're boss. We're working for you."

Garth walked back into the blackness of the spruce trees. He returned with the floursack packbag, his own and Lilith's buckskin suits, and a hindquarter of fat caribou meat. At his invitation, the men eagerly went at the frozen meat with an ax, and put the big teapot, full of snow, on the fire.

Lilith and Garth had eaten before coming down from the igloo. They sat back, on a snowdrift, and watched while the others devoured the tender broiled meat and gulped down cups of hot tea. The flesh of the old she-bear had been as tough as leather and her fat very rank.

Huxby continued to sit in morose silence, with his back to the fire. The feasters paid no heed to him. After a time Lilith began to stir uneasily. At last she had to act. She handed her pistol to Garth, and went to put a piece of meat on a spit. When it was broiled, she took it and a cup of tea to Huxby.

He started up at her as if dumfounded, then shook his head sullenly. She put down the cup and plate beside him, and returned to Garth. At his look of cool inquiry, her eyes flashed with defiance.

"I don't care! It's not right to starve anyone."

He replied in a noncommittal tone: "You're a woman."

The murderer took up his cup of hot tea in his manacled hands and drank. He began to eat the meat.

When daylight came, Garth ordered everyone out to the cabin plane. The hard-frozen slush ice gave solid footing over the bog. It also gave a solid foundation out at the plane upon which were based the engineer's lifting operations. The ice had been chopped from around the floats, and a crib built under the inner end of each wing. By hoisting first on the outer end of one wing and then the other, the cribs had been heightened until the floats were level with the top of the ice.

A glance inside the cabin showed Garth the body of Constable Dillon lying where he had left it. Laney explained, with a jerk of a mittened thumb to Huxby:

"He first says we'd chuck the stiff under the ice. Then he says, no, to wait an' heave it out when we was flying over the muskegs."

"We'll wait still longer," Garth said. "That brave constable is going to receive an honorable burial. Now get to work with those sapling levers. Another pair of logs on the cribs will raise the floats high enough to roller her clear."

Garth showed the men how to skew the rollers for turning the plane. He went to shove sidewards on the tail. The plane started to curve around.

A shriek from Lilith whirled Garth face about. Huxby was rushing at him, with an ax lifted high in his manacled hands. Lilith flew at the attacker as if frenzied. She sought to block his charge. He gave her his shoulder with the skill of a football player. It caught her on the chin and sent her spinning.

But the slight check allowed Garth time for a leap in under the ax before the blade could whirl down on his head. His left fist appeared to punch deep into the pit of Huxby's stomach. His right drove up under the chin of the gasping murderer. The uppercut lifted the killer off his feet and dropped him on his face, clean knocked out.

With no more than a glance at his fallen attacker, Garth sprang to help Lilith's dazed effort to sit up. "Well played," he said. "Not hurt, are you?"

"N-no—I—you—he didn't!" she cried, and burst into tears.

Garth gave her a pat on the head, and turned away, embarrassed. "No wonder you're overcome. It's been too much for a girl. We'll hop out of here at once."

He lashed the unconscious killer's wrists to his belt, tied his ankles together, and climbed into the cockpit of the plane. After replacing the breaker points, he had the men take turns spinning the propeller. He then tried the self-starter. The engine roared. Pulled by the whirling propeller, the plane slid forward off the log rollers.

After cutting the gun, Garth ordered two of the men to heave Huxby into the cabin. The third man he sent for the rifles. "I want the one with which he shot Constable Dillon. But you may as well bring the others—also a lot of that bear fat."

He himself went to pick up the still-weeping girl and help her to the second seat in the cockpit. He made sure of the supply of gasoline, and climbed down again to see that the men gave the bottom of the floats a thorough greasing with the bear fat.

After that, when all were aboard, and the rifles in Lilith's keeping, he started the engine. The plane at first moved slowly. The floats dragged on the rough surface of the frozen slush. But when they glided out on the streak of glare ice, the friction became less than that of a water take-off.

Within a half mile the speed had so increased that an easy pull on the joy-stick sent the plane skimming up off the glassy surface. Garth banked in a long curve to the left, listening to the roar of the warmed motor. Every cylinder was hitting sweet.

He made a wide spiral over the valley for elevation, and drove out eastwards above a saddle in the jagged mountain barrier. When clear of the valley, he did not keep straight on across to the Mackenzie. He turned more to the south.

CHAPTER XII

Squaw Lilith.

The cross-country flight brought the plane to the Mackenzie at the great bend below the Liard. But Garth did not come down at Fort Simpson. He flew on up the vast river to Great Slave lake, and east across the lake to Fort Resolution.

Some time before sunset, he set the cabin plane down at the landing of the Airways base by the mouth of the Slave river. After handing Lilith ashore, he left her standing while he went to speak to the Airways superintendent. That courteous gentleman hastened to tell the girl that his wife would be delighted if the daughter of Mr. Burton Ramill would honor their hospitality.

Garth was not invited. He turned away to meet the red-coated sergeant of police for whom he had sent. Lilith did not see him again until the next morning.

Told by her hostess that Mr. Garth wished to speak with her, she made a hurried effort to adjust her borrowed dress. Though more stylish than the one loaned to her on the steamer by the Fort Norman missionary's wife, it was not cut for her lithe figure. She went hesitatingly into the room where Garth waited alone for her.

Sight of him in his caribou parka brought her to a startled halt. Her eyes widened. "Oh, still in your skin suit! You—you're going back!"

"What difference does it make to you?" he asked. "You'll soon be in Edmonton—and civilization."

She stepped suddenly close to him, her hands held out in appeal. "No! I—Alan, take me back with you!"

"Back there? Don't tell me you like that squaw life. Those days in the valley and the trip out must have been a h—l of torment to you—dirt, rags, mosquito dope, flies, starvation. And now ice, snow, bitter cold."

"Anything—anything just to be with you, Alan—dear!"

He put his arms about her. He kissed her red lips and scarlet cheeks and tightly closed eyelids.

"My girl," he said, "you are going with me wherever I go. Get on your parka."

Her arms were clasped tight about his neck. She lingered a moment to return his kiss. Then, her blue eyes aglow, she ran to obey him.

When she came hastening back, in her Eskimo costume, she ventured an appeal: "Can't I have a comb and brush and—and soap, Alan?"

He looked soberly past her shoulder at the amused face of her hostess. "Well, yes, I dare say you can. We're going first to Edmonton. Your father is there. I sent him a message that we are coming."

She plucked at the wolverine fringe of her parka hood. "You—you cheat!"

He took her into his arms, regardless of the onlooking lady. "My girl, we are back in civilization. We are first going to be properly married."

"But these caribou suits?"

"Best of flying costumes. We're taking a two-seater. The suits will come in handy again this winter when I teach Mrs. Garth how to drive a dog team. Until that it's to be silks for my girl. I must first testify at the trial. After that we'll hop over to Victoria and take a steamer to Japan for our honeymoon."

"Oh, Alan, how—how delightful! But Japan? Why, I never dreamt a prospector like you would care to travel in the Orient. So, if—if you'd rather go back to the valley, dear—"

Her hostess could no longer keep silent.

"Prospector, Miss Ramill! Is that all you know about Mr. Garth? His father is one of the heads of the Hudson's Bay company. He himself is a member of our parliament, a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, a noted explorer—"

"And the winner of the gamest girl I ever knew," Garth cut in. "Come on, Squaw Lilith. You've proved yourself a mate woman. Now you're going to be my lady wife."

[THE END.]

Outlying Territories of U. S. Are Worth Millions

The outlying territories of the United States and the manner in which they were acquired are the following:

Alaska, purchased from Russia in 1867, for $7,200,000.

Hawaii, annexed in 1898, at the request of the people of Hawaii.

Porto Rico, ceded by Spain at the conclusion of the Spanish-American war.

Virgin Islands of the United States, consisting of the more westerly of the Virgin island group in the West Indies, the other being British. These islands were formerly known as the British West Indies, and were purchased from Denmark in 1917 for $25,000,000.

The Philippines, taken from Spain by the Spanish-American war, $20,000,000 being paid in settlement.

Guam, an island of the Mariana archipelago in the Pacific, also ceded by Spain in 1898.

American Samoa, consisting of four islands of the Samoa group in the South Pacific. From 1889 to 1900 the United States, Germany and Great Britain exercised a kind of joint protectorate over Samoa. In 1900, following the overthrow of the native king, the islands were divided between this country and Germany, by agreement among the powers.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

65,000-Year-Old Monster

A 65,000-year-old prehistoric monster, a relic of the days when semi-tropical waters covered most of Manitoba with their ooze, is on exhibition at the Winnipeg museum. The skeleton of the reptile was found on the banks of the Abissiboine river near Treherne. It is 30 feet long and resembles a huge lizard. It took museum workers 18 months to assemble the bones.

There Is No Appeal From Decisions of Moral Law

A man may have a legal right to take advantage of another. But he can never have a moral right to do it, and the moral law will decide against him every time with no appeal.

Human law has a limited range. Moral law conditions the universe, and no one, in the end, can escape from its decisions.

SOME WILL NOT SEE

According to the latest news from the benighted and sorely tried state of Louisiana, the little tilt between the two "leading" political lights of that commonwealth was all a mistake.

It is now blazoned forth through news channels that the policies of their own "Huey" would be carried on in future—to where no one seems able to enlighten the public.

It seems too bad that many public officials will not "see the light," but continue to labor under the delusion that a dictatorship once begun must prevail to the end of time.

Dictators have done more to ruin nations, states, municipalities and political subdivisions than every other "breed of cats" ever loosed on an unsuspecting people.

Men and women in private life are slow to wrath, but once aroused hardly ever fail to smash the force that seeks only to "rule or ruin."

May we suggest that any who aspire to this position in the public lime light might do well to pause—and study the "handwriting on the wall."

People who become obsessed with their own importance and are drunk with power are soon found to be "too big" for the community in which they live and have probably thrived—and may be soon relegated to a position in the rear ranks.

A word to the wise should be sufficient.

DALY CITY'S KING FISH PATS HIMSELF ON THE BACK

Listening to Mr. Smith over the radio last night reminded me of the "Arabian Nights." Mr. Smith recounted the benefits of his administration in poetic language; he feelingly reminded the people of the beneficences he had bestowed on them. It could only have been himself, for their is only one mind on the board. He recalled the streets and their low cost. He omitted to remind his hearers, however, that they only got the kind they did get after a severe struggle with himself—he wanted to give them a poorer grade for the same money. He brought to mind all the best he could in his own favor, according to his own convenience.

Some old timers who know, doubt its complete veracity—some truth and some—(?)

The insurgents of the city (and their are many) listened to his self-praise with the greatest astonishment. They wondered why he did not mention the "Bingo" game he tried to foist on them and which they beat to his chagrin by a referendum petition—the second time they had to check him in this manner in a few weeks.

The gent mentioned by Mr. Smith who praised San Mateo scenery so highly ought to have seen Daly City Park.

The expenses of the city have been kept down by the taxpayers more than by Mr. Smith, who has just appointed his nephew as a policeman (Nepotism). A short time ago he appointed three clerks to sit in a chair all day long to answer the phone if it should ring once a week for a policeman. Such and more of them are the real benefits Mr. Smith has bestowed on the city he so dearly loves. He would have given the city many more of the same kind, only the people seem to object.

However, to give the devil his due, Mr. Smith has improved vastly in his delivery; he sounds like he has had good instructors. What is he trying to slip over on us now—by radio?

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

(By Rev. Miles Dawson)

Last Tuesday the world celebrated Saint Patrick's Day, but few, especially Protestants, know anything about him. Strangely enough, efforts to record his life have yielded meager results. In secular history and sacred, facts are gathered here and there, legend is combined with fact, and the best of our information is not pure.

The Acts of Saint Patrick, by Muirchu Maccumachteni, is probably the oldest life of the saint, belonging to the A. D. 700 period. three hundred years after his life, and is found in the Book of Armagh.

From the Saint's Confession, we learn that at the age of sixteen, he was taken away captive from his birth-place, probably Scotland. He tells of his father, Calpurnius, a deacon in the Church, and of his grandfather, Potitus, a priest. Carried into Ireland, with other young captives, he was sold to a chieftain, who set him to watch cattle. For the six years that he was held, he meditated upon his early religious training, and finally escaped, by divine vision, to rejoin his old friends in his home-land. No more is known of him until he reached forty-five, when he went into Ireland again, this time a consecrated bishop. He began his ministry by Christianizing Chieftains and soon established a native Church and a native clergy. He suffered persecution and danger, but earnestly sought to bring Christ into Ireland, and his success was partial, but marked. Of his death and burial we know nothing but tradition.

ANNIVERSARY OF L.D.S. RELIEF SOCIETY

Mrs. George Felsch of Risel street was hostess at a delightful afternoon party on Tuesday in honor of the ninety-fourth anniversary of the L. D. S. Women's Relief Society. Members and friends were invited guests.

A huge birthday cake was the table decoration.

Reminiscing by older members and musical selections by Mrs. O. Stowell and a solo by Mrs. Beatrice Sinister accompanied by Mrs. M. Briscoe and a review of the organization of the Relief Society on March 17, 1842, in Nauvoo, Illinois, by Mrs. A. Felsch were the program features of the afternoon and were greatly enjoyed.

Miss Mary Stewart of Denver has been appointed assistant director of education for the United States Indian Service and will develop vocational training in Indian schools.

VAGUE VAPORINGS OF RIVALS HELP PRESIDENT

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

That there is a certain magic in the word "liberal" there is no gainsaying. Franklin Roosevelt is emphatically no "radical," but he is fully entitled to be called a liberal, both on account of his speeches and deeds.

When Ogden Mills comes along, however, and tries to make people think he is a liberal it is hard to suppress the guffaws. For Mills, like his former chief, Herbert Hoover, is essentially a conservative and probably without injustice could be termed a reactionary. It is all in the point of view, of course, and, as Roosevelt and Mills are at opposite poles in their philosophies, it is arrant nonsence to call them both liberals.

As one critic of Mills' recent book, "Liberalism Fights On," says, readers who have thought of themselves as being in the liberal camp will wonder whether they must not move into the ranks of the radicals.

Generalities abound in the book, such as his "liberalism" make him a believer in free government, free enterprise, and free men. He declares free enterprise denotes the federal government staying on the side lines in our competitive capitalist system.

One amazing declaration may be quoted:

"A wide distribution of property is the greatest safeguard of a free society."

That is where we expected to come upon a specific scheme for the redistribution of wealth, but we were disappointed. The former Hoover cabinet member does not suggest any device for realizing his supposed ideal.

Even the former President sees the trend of the country toward liberalism and has let it be known that everything his successor has done is not wrong. In a speech at Colorado Springs Hoover said the New Deal regulations of stocks and security promotion in various aspects had the right objectives. He qualified the commendation by saying the regulations were hastily formed and were not given proper consideration by Congress.

Apparently the ex-chief executive does not believe in any comprehensive plan for saving the country, as he was especially bitter in his address for the President's support of a planned economy, the only thing probably that can prevent the nation from falling to pieces.

It is hard to see how any argument could be made against these words of President Roosevelt:

"All the proposals and legislation since March 4 have not been just a collection of haphazard schemes, but rather orderly component parts of a connected and logical whole."

That sounds like common sense to us. But not to Mr. Hoover.

A New York correspondent of an English newspaper made a study recently of the alleged decline in the popularity of the President, but stubs his toe in admitting a substantial degree of recovery from the depression, with business roughly at 80 per cent of normal, as compared with 60 per cent when the President went into the White House.

The "chief" said on inauguration that he did not expect to make a safe hit every time he went to the bat. A ball player never lived that batted 1000 per cent. So why should odium be heaped on the ruler of a great nation because he had failed in certain respects?

In the nature of things a liberal is going to be roundly abused, both by extremists and reactionaries. We should say that when President Roosevelt is denounced by "entrenched greed" for being a Socialist and by radicals because he has done so little in the direction of practical Socialism it is a high compliment to him. He is trying with all his might to run things for the benefit of the people, not for any particular group, however, loud its members may screech they are being terribly abused.

BANK OF AMERICA EXTENDING HELP TO HOME OWNERS

Two Thousand FHA Homes Financed By Bank Of America for $10,000,000

That the Bank of America is playing a leading part in the current home building program was indicated with announcement today that 2000 California already have acquired homes of their own under government-insured single mortgages, approximating $10,000,000, financed by this state-wide banking institution.

Clifford C. Anglim, director of the Federal Housing Administration for Northern California, personally presented the two thousandth commitment to L. M. Giannini, president of Bank of America. He congratulated the banker, and, on behalf of the government, expressed appreciation of the bank's energetic activity in acquainting the public with this form of long term financing.

"You have performed a commendable public service and I am sure each and every one of these 2000 happy home owners appreciate as deeply and sincerely as does the Federal Housing Administration the prominent part your bank is taking in making available funds under the insured single mortgage system," Anglim declared in presenting the commitment. "Your bank occupies an outstanding position in the entire nation for cooperative effort and results achieved with government-insured financing."

Bank of America was said to be the first bank in the United States to reach the ten million dollar mark on single mortgage loans. Also, it published the first newspaper advertisements inviting borrowers to avail themselves of Federal Housing financing. The advertisements appeared the day following the signing of the National Housing Act by President Roosevelt.

"Bank of America and the managers of all of our 437 branch banks are encouraging home ownership under government-insured single mortgages," Giannini said. "We look upon this plan not only as good banking, but as providing an opportunity for thousands of rent paying families to acquire homes of their own.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

FIRE PREVENTION

By Chief A. P. Chesney

Soot should never be burned out of chimneys, as the practice is dangerous. Records show a short while back a high school in the East was damaged by fire to the extent of $20,000 due to this method of cleaning flues. Moreover, this practice is likely to crack the flue lining and make trouble later on.

If in spite of usual precautions a chimney fire does occur, it may often be extinguished by throwing a few pounds of salt into the flue from the top or a pail of sand, earth or ashes may be used.

Where grates or open fire places connect with the flue, care should be taking to stop up these openings in order to prevent the scattering of burning soot into the rooms where the fireplaces are, thus causing additional damage.

THE HEATING PLANT

There are naturally many fires falling into the classification of stoves, furnaces, boilers and their pipes as designated by the Actuarial Bureau of the National Board of Underwriters.

A fire that remains on its good behavior in the stove or furnace where it belongs, is known to insurance men as a "friendly fire," but when it escapes its legitimate bounds it becomes a "hostile fire."

FEW INCOME TAX DEDUCTIONS FOR AUTO OWNERS

Motorists May List Their Deductions For Losses Sustained In Operation

Deductions permitted motor car owners under federal income tax regulations will be substantially the same under the new California personal income tax act. Federal tax returns must be made by March 15, and the state tax returns by April 15.

Under the federal income tax law motor car owners are entitled to list certain deductions for sums paid out or losses sustained in connection with the ownership and operation of automobiles. There are, however, some important exceptions to the list of allowable deductions.

Allowable deductions do not include the state gasoline tax in California, the federal gasoline tax, or the federal taxes on lubricating oil, tires, tubes, accessories, new cars and trucks. A Department of Internal Revenue ruling holds that these taxes are imposed by law on the manufacturer or distributor and are not to be considered as taxes paid by the consumer.

Deductions which automobile owners are allowed to make in computing their taxable income include the following:

All sums paid during the calendar year as registration fees, personal property taxes and municipal taxes.

Interest on money borrowed for the purchase of an automobile.

The amount of financing charges on automobiles purchased which covers the interest on the loan, when specifically set forth in the contract, but not the amount covering the premium on insurance to protect the finance company's interest.

All operating and maintenance expense, including depreciation, on automobiles used wholly for business, or a pro rata share of such expenses representing business use where a passenger car is used chiefly (more than 50 per cent) for business. Depreciation usually is figured at 25 per cent per annum.

Automobile insurance on automobiles used for business purposes.

Uncompensated losses sustained by reason of damage to automobiles used for business or pleasure.

Damage paid for injuries to persons or for destruction of property, provided the automobile at the time of the accident was being used for business.

Loss sustained when a car used for business is sold outright at a price less than its depreciated value. (Loss sustained where an automobile used for business is traded in for a new car can not be deducted, but such loss can be considered as part of the cost when computing depreciation for the ensuing year.)

No deduction can be made for the amount paid for an automobile used for either business or pleasure, this being a capital expenditure and subject to claim for depreciation where the automobile is used for business.

Where an employee receives an allowance or mileage from the employer for automobile operation, unless such allowance is declared as part of income no claim can be made by the employee for deduction on account of operating expenses.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Matter" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, March 22, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "The fashion of this world passeth away" (I Cor. 7: 31). Other Bible citations will include: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea; . . . There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High. . . . The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved: he uttered his voice, the earth melted" (Ps. 46: 1, 2, 4, 6).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "It requires courage to utter truth; for the higher Truth lifts her voice, the louder will error scream, until its inarticulate sound is forever silenced in oblivion. 'He uttered His voice, the earth melted.' This Scripture indicates that all matter will disappear before the supremacy of Spirit" (p. 97).

FRANKLIN'S FATHER AND MOTHER DIED OF FIRST ILLNESS

Benjamin Franklin used to say of his parents, "I never knew either my father or mother to have any sickness but that of which they died, he at eighty-nine and she at eighty-five years of age." He had inherited an excellent physical foundation for the making of a great man.

In a printing shop in London, whither he went at the age of eighteen, he astonished his fellow workers by abstaining from beer and yet being able to carry a large form of type in each hand where the others carried but one in both hands. Franklin kept a score card of virtues to be practiced. The first of the rules of conduct reads: "Temperance.—Eat not to dullness; drink not to elevation."

Franklin's philosophic mind came to the conclusion that the quantity of each kind of exercise is to be judged not by the time spent or distance covered, "but by the degree of warmth it produces in the body."

Considering the customs of his day, he was a remarkable specimen of health, strength and endurance, concedes Dr. James F. Rogers in Hygeia.

Theater Employee Arranges to Appear on Stage After Death

He wanted to appear, after his death, on the stage of the theater where he came daily for half a century to direct the lighting. So in his will, John Reed, employed long ago as gas-lighter by the Walnut Street theater, left provisions for a Shakespearean role. He wanted to be the skull in "Hamlet."

"My head to be separated from my body immediately after my death," provided his will, "the latter to be buried in a grave, the former to be brought to the theater where I served all my life and to be employed to represent the skull of Yorick—and to this end I bequeath my head to the properties."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Pathway of Life Is That of Will and Fortune

"In the long run," says Moreau sagely and wittily, "men hit only what they aim at." Luck may play queer tricks for a while with a life; but in the end the aims and principles of the man or woman come out clearly, in spite of fortune.

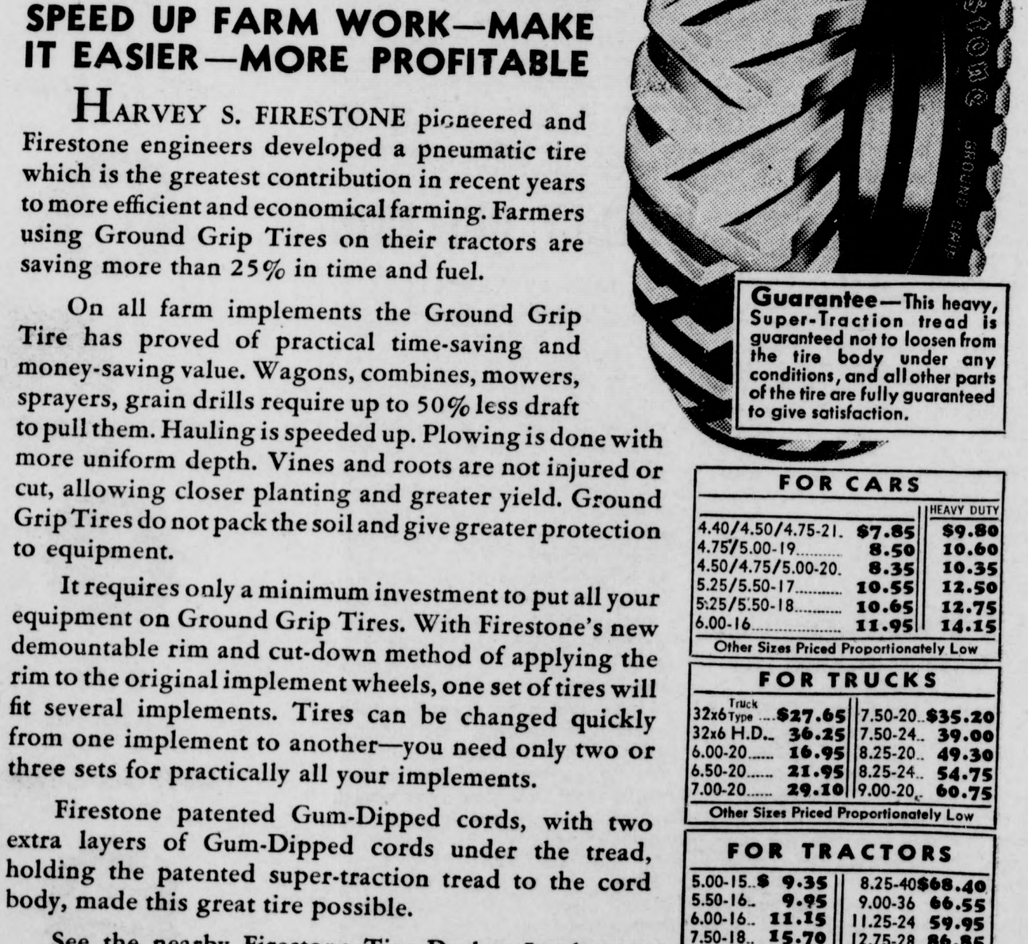
Firestone

PUTS THE FARM ON RUBBER



FIRESTONE GROUND GRIP TIRES

SPEED UP FARM WORK—MAKE IT EASIER—MORE PROFITABLE

HARVEY S. FIRESTONE pioneered and Firestone engineers developed a pneumatic tire which is the greatest contribution in recent years to more efficient and economical farming. Farmers using Ground Grip Tires on their tractors are saving more than 25% in time and fuel.

On all farm implements the Ground Grip Tire has proved of practical time-saving and money-saving value. Wagons, combines, mowers, sprayers, grain drills require up to 50% less draft to pull them. Hauling is speeded up. Plowing is done with more uniform depth. Vines and roots are not injured or cut, allowing closer planting and greater yield. Ground Grip Tires do not pack the soil and give greater protection to equipment.

It requires only a minimum investment to put all your equipment on Ground Grip Tires. With Firestone's new demountable rim and cut-down method of applying the rim to the original implement wheels, one set of tires will fit several implements. Tires can be changed quickly from one implement to another—you need only two or three sets for practically all your implements.

Firestone patented Gum-Dipped cords, with two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread, holding the patented super-traction tread to the cord body, made this great tire possible.

See the nearby Firestone Tire Dealer, Implement Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today—and in placing your order for new equipment, be sure to specify Firestone Ground Grip Tires on your new tractor or farm implement.

Listen to the Voice of Firestone featuring Richard Crooks or Nelson Eddy—with Margaret Speaks, Monday evenings over Nationwide N. B. C.—WEAF Network

Guarantee—This heavy, Super-Traction tread is guaranteed not to loosen from the tire body under any conditions, and all other parts of the tire are fully guaranteed to give satisfaction.

SIGNIFICANCE OF MONTH OF MARCH

(By Maude Larue Ives)

"If March comes in like a lion," the popular saying reads, "it will go out like a lamb." If, on the other hand, the first day of March is balmy and "lamblike," the last day is certain to be stormy. Not so very long ago farmers were superstitious about the last three days of this month, because they were said to be borrowed from April, and the first three days were called "blind days" and were considered unlucky, so no seed was planted on those days.

March boisterously ushers in the spring, and it is most fitting that its name should be chosen in honor of the war god Mars, believed in by the Romans.

The special gem of the month is the bloodstone; and the flower, the violet.

"Oh March! we know thou art
Kindhearted in spite of ugly looks and threats,
And out of sight, art nusing April's volets!"—H. H. Jackson.

INQUEST REVEALS THE CAUSE OF TWO DEATHS

An inquest in the death of Joseph Marigini of Colma was held at the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., Wednesday of this week by Coroner William Crosby.

The jury returned a verdict that death was due to automobile injuries received in an accident which occurred on March 7 at the intersection of the Junipero Serra boulevard and School street.

The driver of the death car, who was charged with manslaughter, is at liberty on $250 bail.

An inquest in the death of Mrs. Etta Heist, 84, of Westlake avenue, who passed away March 10, was held at the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., Wednesday morning of this week. The finding was death resulted from natural causes.

SURPRISED BY FRIENDS

Saturday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wettstein, formerly of Brunswick street, were tendered a surprise house warming at their beautiful new home on Church street in San Francisco by twenty-six of their friends.

At midnight a dainty supper was served in the social hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wall of Evergreen avenue were among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Wettstein were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

ADJUST THE SHACKLES

Snow-covered highways present rough surfaces. Part of this roughness can be overcome by a tigtening of the spring shackles which are adjustable for wear in virtually every case.

It is well to exercise care in this task for the shackles can be made so tight they will bind.

DALY CITY ROD AND GUN CLUB

(By "Bill" Grantham)

Journeyed to the Brothers, Sisters (not my family), Red Rock, Ring Point, etc.; in fact, covered all points between Tiburon and McNears Point the past Sunday. Trolled from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. Tried plugs, spoons and bait, 2 ounce, 4 ounce, 6 ounce and 8 ounce torpedoes, but nary a strike. Saw about 8 bass caught among about 100 boats. Not a very large catch.

Saw the good Ship Nicknar cruising about, Captain Rankin and "Old Sarge" Gambter and crew aboard. Hailed the boat, no fish aboard at 3 p. m. unless one excepts the crew. Largest bass seen were two 11-12 poundrs caught trolling by a boat off Belvedere in Richardson Bay.

San Pablo Bay more or less roily all day, owing to outgoing tide. Richardson Bay and adjacent water clear practically all day, owing to the small outgoing tide. Next week end should see better conditions, as the high tide occurs around mid-day.

Don't forget our regular meeting this coming Friday, March 20, at Eagles Hall, 8:30 p. m. Big mussel feed, etc. Bring your candidate.

Ho, ho, "boys"! See you in the funny paper!

MOTHERS CLUB OF CATHOLIC SCHOOL GROWS RAPIDLY

Since the recent inauguration of a Mothers Club, attached to the Catholic school in Daly City, most gratifying results have been accomplished for the betterment of both school and children. The first regular meeting, which was held in February, was very enthusiastic and the Sisters of St. Joseph who were present were highly gratified at the results. The club has for its president, Mrs. J. Cunningham 123 Miriam street. Mrs. G. Ford and Mrs. Lombard are the other two officers. All concerned with with this new organization are looking forward to a membership of all the mothers whose children attend the Catholic school.

The first object of the club is to complete a library. In time it is hoped it will be possible to build an auditorium.

February prize winners were the children of the third grade for having the greatest number of mothers present. It was decided at the meeting to hold in the near future a White Elephant Sale.

The social advantage of this club is by no means its smallest good, so it is hoped that the parents of the children will not delay but will join as soon as possible. The next meeting will be held at 1:30 p. m. on March 31. All are requested to assemble in the school grounds.

The first whist to be given by the Mothers Club, in aid of Our Lady of Perpetual Help School, will take place in Daly City Auditorium Friday, March 20. The new enthusiasm which this club is giving to this affair promises to have results in a large attendance. So far the sale of tickets and the contributions in prizes have given the highest hopes for a bigger-than-ever whist.

MAKE MERRY AT GALA TIME IN COLOMBO HALL

Second Annual Entertainment And Dance For Widows And Orphans Fund.

The chairmen of the various committees have been holding meetings with their members and everything is tentatively arranged to give the people of Daly City a splendid evening of pleasure on the night of May 9 in Colombo Hall.

Each member of the department has been supplied with a certain number of tickets that he is pledged to sell, so help your favorite fireman out when he requests you to purchase tickets.

There is also a large committee out to procure advertisements from local merchants to fill up our program. Any firemen will take your ad and turn it in to this committee.

The money from these annual affairs is used in a good cause, such as insuring the wives and children of the members that they will not be compelled to depend on charity if their husband or father should be taken away.

None of the money so derived is spent on salaries, banquets, or anything except for the purpose for which it is raised, namely the fund for the protection of the Widows and Orphans Association of the Daly City Fire Department.

Florence Arata, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Arata of Peoria street returned home, Tuesday of this week, after spending the past three weeks in the Children's Hospital in San Francisco, being a victim of fever. Her brother Louis is convalescing at home after a mild attack of the same illness.
